About Bargad

BARGAD is a youth focused and youth-led organization working exclusively on youth development in Pakistan since 1997. The mission of BARGAD is to promote peace, justice and cooperation among youth in Pakistan. The organization combines rights-based action with personal development of youth in programme areas of (i) Peace & Youth Cooperation, (ii) Youth Leadership & Volunteerism, (iii) Youth Advocacy and (iv) Youth Research & Publications.

Thematic areas of the organization are Peace, Gender, Democracy and Human Rights.

BARGAD is a grassroots organization that holds the distinction to simultaneously work with youth in their campuses and communities and interact with national policies.

BARGAD has a strong network with 52 universities and higher education institutions, 40 colleges and 35 schools. It has also worked with 26-membership based student organizations, forums, and 15 partner youth groups and civil society organizations. The organization is in contact with more than 800 youth organizations in Punjab and ICT.

With a vast network of more than 1200 youth volunteers through-out the country Pakistan, the hallmark of our work has been that the core groups of BARGAD's young volunteers participate in all aspects of project planning and implementation and learn by doing things on their own.

Message from the Executive Director

I am pleased to present the first ever directory of youth organizations and informal youth groups in Pakistan. It is the result of an extensive youth mapping study.

The present volume maps out youth organizations and informal youth groups of Punjab province and the Islamabad Capital Territory (ICT). I believe this directory is a valuable resource for youth organizations/ groups, civil society organizations, donors, government and policy makers.

Bargad has been striving since 1997 to put youth issues on top of public and policy agenda. The recognition of youth issues, however, was never as felt as for now: the decision makers will have to reckon with the sheer number of Pakistani youth while designing education, population and economic policies and plans and engage them in governance structures and public forums.

This directory is divided into two sections: the first one maps out the youth organizations and informal youth groups by classification and summarizes the aggregate data of organizational characterizes pertaining to Punjab province and the ICT. The second section documents contact information of the organizations and groups working on youth.

This directory is an authentic tool of networking and alliance building, which offers a ready reference to policy and public practitioners to work with the organized youth. It is a vital source on how many, where, which and what kind of youth bodies are working for the betterment of youth.

Bargad takes pride in undertaking this huge enterprise for greater networking and alliance building among youth organizations and thank all those who have in some way contributed to mapping and compilation of the youth directory.

I hereby like to express my first gratitude to Heinrich Boll Stiftung (HBS) for financial support. I am thankful to Britta Petersen, Saima Jasam and Mazher Zaheer of HBS for supporting this unique idea and for their constant support of youth issues of Pakistan.

I am also indebted to Dr. Shahbaz Israr Khan, for his painstaking research and writing the first draft of the report. Rana Mujahid deserves special acknowledgement for his first assignment as research assistant. He did great job during the last six months and he could not do this task without the support of Usman Rasheed, and the rest of the Bargad's team: Muqadas Iqbal, Sarmad Raza Nayak, Nauman Ch, Bushra Sadiq, Saiqa Rani, Shahkeela, Adnan, Saqib Murtaza, Shahid Aziz, Uzma, Amir Sohail and Baseer Khan. All put together made a formidable team for collection and validation of data. Special thanks are also due to our volunteers Munnaza Nazeer, Muhammad Kashif Murtaza, Sadaf Javaria, and Azeem Siddiqui.

I also extend my sincere thanks to Mr. Mohyuddin Ahmed Wani, Secretary, Mr. Maqbool Malik, DS Planning at the Ministry of Information, Culture and Youth Affairs and Ms. Shahida Riaz, Deputy Director NGOs, the Social Welfare Department, Government of Punjab for providing valuable to the research team. Neengar Society and HADAF Foundation are also acknowledged for extending their kind support.

I highly recognize the intellectual input and advice of seasoned development experts Sadia Atta Mehmood (UNFPA), Nasira Habib (KHOJ), Gulmina Bilal (Individualland), Ali Salman (Development Pool), Iqbal Haider But (Freelance) and Junaid Israr Khan (Deputy Manager HR, Ripah International University).

I also acknowledge the support of our Board of Directors (BoD): Dr. Kaiser Bengali, Dr. Ghazala Irfan, Dr. Huma Baqai, Prof. Shahid Gul, Hina Shafqat, Sabeen Inam, Samina Zareen, and Abdul Basit Ch.

Lastly, the youth directory could not have been completed without actual fieldwork of our young enumerators from districts of Punjab and the ICT.

It took nine months to undertake the youth mapping study and develop this youth directory. Our team ensured that all functional organizations are part of the youth directory. We have tried our level best to include every youth organization and informal group from 36 district of Punjab and Islamabad capital territory. If some groups are missing, we apologize beforehand and invite them to contact us. We will include them in our next edition.

This is just the beginning. Our teams are now working in Balochistan, Sindh and KPK provinces and Kashmir and Gilgit-Balistan regions. We will soon publish similar volumes of youth directories of other three provinces and one combined for the two regions.

I look forward to a meaningful use of this directory for integrated youth development in Pakistan.

Organization of Youth Directory 2011

Youth Directory 2011 has been divided into two sections:

- A) Section 1- Mapping Study of Youth Organizations and Informal Youth Groups (Punjab and the ICT)
- B) Section 2- Youth Directory

A) Section 1- Mapping Study of Youth Organizations and Informal Youth Groups (Punjab and the ICT)

The main components of the section are:

- Introduction to the youth mapping study;
- Objectives of the study;
- Methodology;
- Data analysis;
- Main findings and
- Recommendations

B) Section 2- Youth Directory

The section presents the information on YOs and IYGs of thirty-six districts of Punjab and the ICT in form of a directory. Additionally it also includes information on student wings of political parties in Punjab.

The information includes:

SECTION 1 – Mapping Study of the Youth Organizations and Informal Youth Groups (Punjab and the ICT)

The success of the youth mapping study is that it has been conducted ‘by youth’ and it is ‘for youth’ and is foreseen to be the premier document to network for integrated youth development reforms in Pakistan.

1.1 Introduction to the Youth Mapping Study

There are different approaches to look at how the term ‘youth’ is defined. The most common notion presents youth in the context of having plentiful energy, a sense of leadership, curiosity and vision for the future. “Dreamer, full of energy, want to make a mark in life, impulsive and one who are not scared to take risks;” said a 19 years old volunteer of Bargad, Quratulain.

Population (in millions)

Youth Bulge Pakistan: 2040 Source: US Bureau of Census

Youth growing up today have far more power and potential to create change than any previous generation of youth. Much of this shift is a direct result of the information revolution and access to opportunities that have been provided to people of all ages, especially to those growing up in the information age.¹

Youth is one of most important time in lifecycle of a human being. This stage is full of enthusiasm, dynamism, vibrancy and has to be used in such a way that it results in overall development of the society. Its huge energy through the innovative and out parameter desire to look beyond traditional ways to solve societal problems may also work otherwise.

¹ Role of Youth Survey 2004 By, Jennifer Corriero

Youth becomes increasingly important when it outnumbers other sections of the population. Presently, a large proportion of youth is entering into population structures. Around the world, sixty-two countries are ranked as “very young” which means that two-thirds of their populations are under the age of thirty². Recent researches establish that the population’s age structure (the relative size of each age group) deeply affects development opportunities and plays a major role in security risks and governance challenges.³

Pakistan, a country passing through demographic youth bulge, is a land of different cultures and weathers. Youth living in it holds similar diversity in its outlook, language, clothing, food, music, living etc.

Active youth (15-29 years) represents 30.2 percent of the total projected population with 29.9 female and 30.4 male percentages in this age cohort.⁴ Total fertility rate of Pakistan is 3.17⁵ and around early 2040’s Pakistan will have surpassed Brazil and Indonesia to become the fourth most populous country in the world following behind China, India and United States.⁶

⁶ Asian Bureau Statistics

In this scenario, topic of harnessing youth potentials becomes very important in a country that is passing through demographic transition and through a phase of terrorism and extremism. Only last year (2010), the provisional and newspaper data indicates that there were 473 incidences of bomb blasts in Pakistan killing 1547 and injuring 3581 persons. In that year, the fatalities in terrorist violence reached to 7435 people, which included 1796 civilians, 469 security force personnel and 5170 terrorists/ insurgents. More than 35648 people lost their lives from 2003 to July 2011.⁷ It is evident and to no wonder that the majority of the terrorists/ insurgents and suicide bombers were youth.

To transform violence into peace and conflict into development, we have to ensure meaningful participation of youth in the public sphere. For utilization of their potential, they need platforms and participation models. They require processes, programmes, strategies and public messages to be at the top of policy agenda. Focus has to be upon especially services and rights of vulnerable and segregated youth groups i.e. rural, illiterate, poor, victims of violence, minorities, students of public institutions etc. Due to lack of adequate platforms and institutional mechanism for youth on campuses and communities, youth participation is one big area open for youth groups and NGOs to intervene and act for youth rights⁸.

The government and civil society must recognize the potential of the demographic bonus in Pakistan. Youth is not just our future. Youth is our present and there is urgent need to invest in youth. For that, we must recognize youth as a sector. Far from this due acknowledgement, there is still little information available about youth and about the needs (issues) they at present face.

In this situation, youth organizations and informal youth groups hold a very important position. They are organized forums and enjoy good relations with youth. However, before any mapping and compiling their data we have to clarify the key words related with youth organizations and informal groups in the face of frequent questions that are raised about youth and their groups. Some of the natural questions are as following:

What are the youth issues? What is a youth organization? What are the relevant issues for organizations working on youth? What are organizational management systems? Are youth and women participating effectively within organizational systems? How many organizations focus on youth in Pakistan and plan for their social and economic integration? How can we reach these organizations? Do they work on an individual basis or seek collaboration and partnership with others? Are current youth organizations sufficient for youth in Pakistan? What kind of informal youth groups are functional in Pakistan? What are the funding sources of informal youth groups? What are the capacities of youth organizations and informal youth groups? Etc.

Youth practitioners and youth development advocates or policy makers may have these queries. Unfortunately, they usually get incomplete answers because there is no clear and comprehensive published resource that gives full answers to these questions.

A documented source that identifies, defines, describes and gives guidance to the current status and trends of youth organizations and informal youth groups in Pakistan is need of the hour. The partnership between the Bargad and Heinrich Boll Stiftung (HBS) came to fulfill this national need.

1.1.1 Key Features of the Youth Mapping Study

- It is the first comprehensive study on youth organizations and informal youth groups in Pakistan. There is not even single of such mapping study done in Asia.
- It has been conducted by youth and for youth.
- This mapping study has devised a unique system of classification, after a series of consultations, which sifts out youth-focused (YF) and organizations having youth-as-a-component (YC). These main classes are then subdivided into youth-led (YL) organizations and youth-serving (YS) organizations.
- It accounts youth programmes and projects in all 36 districts of Punjab and the ICT.
- It presents district wise analysis in addition to an overall analysis of the province of Punjab and the ICT.
- It lays out identification of youth participation, engagement and representation in board of directors, employees and volunteers within the youth organizations.
- It offers identification of women participation, engagement and representation in board of directors, employees and volunteers within the youth organizations
- It accounts informal youth groups (YIGs') activities and future plans
- 33 youth volunteers of 36 districts of Punjab and the ICT trained in data collection and were actively involved in the implementation of the mapping study.
- 434 youth organizations (YO) identified in Punjab and the ICT.
- 64 informal youth groups (YIG) identified in Punjab and the ICT.

- It compiles contact information of youth organizations (YO) and informal youth groups (YIGs) program areas in the form of a directory.
- It offers future recommendations for youth development reforms in Pakistan.

1.2 Objectives of the Study

1. To provide information on youth organizations and informal youth groups, give access to information on what is already done and what not and thus make exchange of experiences possible
2. To document the scope of work and programs of youth organizations and activities of informal youth groups
3. To facilitate the process of information exchange and networking among youth organizations and informal youth groups in Pakistan

1.3 Methodology

1.3.1 Limitation of the Mapping Study

Due to lack of effective networking among youth organizations, it was difficult to identify each youth organization. Other reason included large geographical area and limited time for the collection of data.

As for the informal youth groups, there were difficulties to reach them as they work informally. They are not registered; and could not be found in a permanent location. In addition, they do not make their activities known, which made it difficult for volunteers to identify them in most of the districts.

Some of the NGOs were reluctant to provide data to the volunteers. Bargad directly contacted such identified organizations. Not all NGOs responded positively to the volunteers' requests, some of them did not extend their facilitation or support in this regard.

1.3.2 Approach to design the Mapping Study

The research team had to define and elaborate the classification of youth organizations into two major groups: (i) Youth-focused Organizations; and (ii) Organizations having youth programme as a component. Each of the two categories was further broken down to (a) Youth-led and (b) Youth-serving. In this way, the inclusion of youth in systems and functioning of the organizations could be determined.

The study also looked at informal youth groups because of the very organization of our society, where not all functional bodies work within the framework of the legal procedures of registration and documentation.

An extensive literature review helped in identifying classification of youth organizations and groups and the secondary data of all organizations that exist in official documents of the Social Welfare Department (Punjab). That gave us with a list of organizations registered with the department. The challenge was to validate youth and functional organizations from this data. Reports of the civil society were another source for this data.

A rigorous review of literature revealed that no comprehensive youth directory has been compiled in the Asian continent.

A questionnaire was developed in the light of literate review and discussions with experts. Volunteers in Punjab districts and the ICT were deployed and trained to collect data.

The quality of data was also determined through phone calls from the Bargad office.

It was planned that the mapping study would be conducted at the national level in five phases:

- i) Phase 1: Punjab & ICT
- ii) Phase 2: Sindh
- iii) Phase 3: Khyber Pukhtunkhwa
- iv) Phase 4: Balochistan
- v) Phase 5: Kashmir and Gilgit-Baltistan

The present study and directory comes out of the work of the Phase I, which took 9 months.

For conducting the census of YOs and IYGs, the province of Punjab was divided into 36 units (districts) and the ICT was taken as one unit. In each unit, an enumerator was selected based on selected criteria, which collected the data of YOs and informal youth groups.

1.3.3 Definitions and Classification of Youth Organizations

Youth

Youth refers to young people between 15-29 years of age according to Pakistani official definition. In this study, we adhere to the national definition.

Youth Organizations

Non-Governmental Organizations/ Non Profit Organizations working on the issues of youth are termed as Youth Organizations.

- i) They must have an organizational structure and working staff
- ii) Should be a registered body

A) Youth-focused Organizations

Youth organizations that focus youth as a prime target of all their programmes are termed as Youth Focused Organizations

B) Organizations having Youth as a Component

Youth organizations that mainly focus on issues other than youth (like women, environment or disabilities etc) but have youth as a component of their programmes are termed as Organizations having Youth as a Component

C) Youth-led Organizations

Organizations in which youth have more than 50 % representation in board of directors, staff members and volunteers (if volunteers are involved in execution of activities)

D) Youth-serving Organizations

Organizations in which youth have less than 50 % representation in board of directors, staff members and volunteers

E) Youth-focused and Youth-led Organizations (YF&YL)

Youth organizations that come under the criteria of definition A & C

F) Youth-focused and Youth-serving Organizations (YF & YS)

Youth organizations that come under the criteria of definition A & D

G) Organizations having Youth as a Component and Youth-led (YC&YL)

Youth organizations that come under the criteria of definition B& C

H) Organizations having Youth as a Component and Youth-serving (YC&YS)

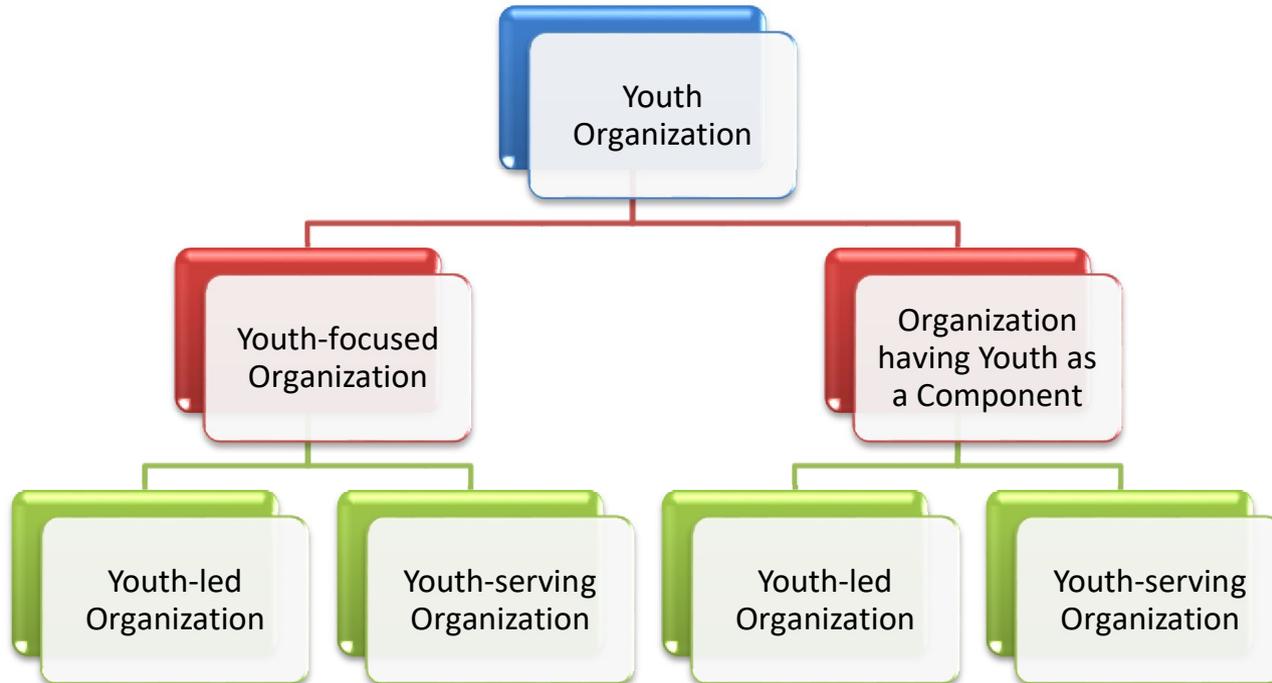

Youth organizations that come under the criteria of definition B& D

I) Informal Youth Groups

Following criteria was set for informal youth groups:

- i) Must have clear vision about their current activities
- ii) Must organize at least one activity once a quarter
- iii) Must meet on regular basis
- iv) Should not have formal organizational structure and paid members
- v) Should not be a registered body

A detailed chart (based upon above definitions) explaining the classification system devised and adopted for youth organizations is as under:

Classification of Youth Organizations

1.3.4 Key Steps of Implementing the Mapping Study

After the literature review, definition, and classification of youth organizations and IYGs, Two structured questionnaires were adopted with modifications after consultations with enumerators of 36 districts. The other key steps included the following:

- 1.3.4.1 Selection and training of Bargad volunteers for conducting the survey in all 36 districts of Punjab and the ICT.
- 1.3.4.2 The research team contacted the Social Welfare Department (Government of Punjab) for accessing data of youth organizations. The data obtained from Social Welfare Department was outdated and only 10 percent of the youth organizations were found functional.
- 1.3.4.3 Internet search was also done to identify available information and contacts of youth NGOs, donors and youth groups operating in Punjab and ICT.
- 1.3.4.4 Data collection by the enumerators.
- 1.3.4.5 Screening and classifying the field data
- 1.3.4.6 Data entry process

1.3.4.1 Identification & Selection of Enumerators

As mentioned earlier, the province of Punjab was divided into 36 units, i.e. into 36 districts. It was a lengthy process to identify required enumerators in all 36 districts of Punjab. For enumerators a selection criteria was developed, which is as: i) Must be youth; ii) Must have at least Bachelors degree iii) Should have a knowledge and interest of youth social issues; iv) should be ready to volunteer the process; v) Should bear a good moral character.

Already registered volunteers of Bargad were preferred. Bargad's volunteers nominated the enumerators in some districts. The organization also used its Facebook page to release the call for enumerators. Eighty youth applied.

Before the selection of the enumerators, detailed interviews of the applicants were taken. Eighty telephonic interviews were conducted and the best 33 enumerators were identified.

1.3.4.2 Training of Enumerators

The group of selected 33 enumerators was trained. An exclusive two hours telephonic training session was designed for the enumerators. Each volunteer was individually trained. A total of 66 hours were devoted to the training of the volunteers. Sessions included training on collection of data and a Q&A session.

Selected volunteers were characterized by being dedicated about work, interested to know all details related to the questions included in the questionnaires and keen to learn and sharp their research skills. The training aimed at gathering the young enumerators to gain a comprehensive understanding of tasks, and discussing the questionnaire from a youth perspective in order to guarantee the high quality of research process and outcomes.

The objectives of the training were to:

- Present the research objectives.

- Introduce the two forms, previously adopted for data collection.
- Apply the forms and get the participants feedback for modifications (youth perspective)
- Set the tone for the fieldwork (youth language).

The training also included a revision to the principles of formal interaction with YOs and basic guidelines for effective communication with others. Participants were encouraged to give their comments, questions and concerns related to the two forms and ways of practically applying them with different YOs. Some volunteers were concerned with the reactions of the YOs to their request of completing the form and others expressed their need to assist them with some contacts to YOs at their districts. The research team responded to all the concerns and questions of volunteers and each district was supported by some contacts of YOs and the district Social Welfare offices to start with. The discussions and the questions raised were important as volunteers became more aware of their task responsibilities and became more confident about their skills and way of communication with YOs.

The main outcomes of the training included:

- Good understanding to the project goal and objectives.
- Good understanding of the two forms.
- A list of guidelines for effective interviewing and ways of overcoming the field obstacles.
- Relationship with groups of trained volunteers was developed.
- Relationship with different YOs and Social Welfare Departments operating in all districts of Punjab was developed.

The recommendations from the youth that came out of the training workshop were integrated into the final questionnaire before printing.

Though volunteers came from different educational backgrounds and specializations, most of them had good knowledge of research tools, especially about collection of data through questioner. The fact that they had different backgrounds enriched the process of the field work and positively impacted the quality of information that came out from the field

1.3.4.3 Data Collection

As mentioned above, the data collection depended mainly on the two questionnaires, one for YOs and the other for informal youth groups. The questionnaires included various sections under which a set of open and closed questions were included.

The research team supervised the fieldwork on a regular basis and offered support whenever required. As cited formerly, the data collection process depended on youth volunteers. Volunteers were trained to use the snowball method while conducting interviews with different youth organizations and informal youth groups. Therefore, some of them recommended names of youth organizations and informal youth groups were among the target group in this research study.

1.3.4.4 Screening and Classifying the Field Data

A total number of 852 survey forms were received. 740 forms of youth organizations and 112 forms of informal youth groups were received. The details are as:

Details of the Youth organizations:

Area	Forms Received	Forms Confirmed	Forms Rejected
Punjab	629	372	257
ICT	111	62	49
Total	740	434	306

Details of the Informal Youth Group:

Area	Forms Received	Forms Confirmed	Forms Rejected
Punjab	111	63	48
ICT	1	1	0
Total	112	64	48

All 852 youth organizations and informal youth groups were then contacted to confirm the data, out of which 372 organizations met the set criteria. The youth organizations and informal youth groups that did not meet the set criteria were taken out of the pool. Following this, the selected data of youth organizations were then classified according to the previously presented definitions, (youth organizations), (youth focused organizations), (organizations having youth as a component). They were then further classified into youth-led and youth-serving organizations.

1.3.4.5 Data Entry Process

Research team entered the data of all NGOs and informal youth groups to be ready for final revision.

1.4 Data Analysis

1.4.1 Youth Organizations

As youth is a new sector in Pakistan, so the concept of youth organization among the society is not very clear. The present study, mainly based on primary data, classifies youth organizations into youth-focused and organizations having youth as a component. These main classes are then sub-classified into youth-led and youth-serving organization (definitions of each type of youth organization and classification system have been explained earlier). This gives a clear distinction among different types of YOs.

In this way, 372 organizations of Punjab and 62 youth organizations of ICT are classified.

1.4.1.1 Punjab

Findings:

- Youth organization is relatively a new term and most the organizations had never heard such term, until very present

- International funding specifically on the issues of youth is nearly insignificant.
- Punjab represents 56%⁹ (81,330,531) ¹⁰of the total projected population of Pakistan. Population of youth in Punjab is 24561820 while there are just 372 identified YOs. It means that every organization has to cover sixty six thousand youth. Now the total numbers of volunteers that the YOs have in Punjab are 197633.
- If we compare the number of identified YOs in Punjab against TSWDS, YOs are just 5.25% of the total registered organizations registered with Social Welfare Department. This shows that the trend of either youth focused and Organizations having youth as a component is rare.
- Total number of Youth Focused YOs is 137 very low against Organizations having youth as a component that are 259. (Identified in Punjab)
- Highest number of YF & YL (10) is identified in Lahore and there are fourteen districts in Punjab where no YF & YL is found.
- There are four districts in Punjab where the maximum six YF & YS organizations are found while no YF and YS is found in sixteen districts.
- Volunteers of most of YOs belong to educational institutions. Marginalized and out of school youth is not the focus of most YOs.
- Distribution of YOs in rural areas is far less as compared to urban areas.

In the below table all 372 YOs have been distributed according to aforementioned classification system.

Graph compares subtypes of YF and YC youth organizations in Punjab. YF & YL comprises of sixty percent of YF while YF & YS makes nearly forty percent of the YF. On other hand YC and YL comprises of nearly 53 percent while &

YS makes 47 percent.

Total YOs	Type of YOs	YOs Identified	% Analysis (Total YOs =372)
372	YF and YL	68	18.28%
	YF and YS	45	12.10%
	YC and YL	122	32.80%
	YC and YS	137	36.83%

The above chart shows that the YF & YL organizations are just eighteen percent of the total identified YOs while YC & YS have the largest share that is more than thirty-six percent. This reflects that youth are not having key roles in youth organizations and the existing YOs does not have youth as a focus of their work.

1.4.1.2 Islamabad Capital Territory

Findings:

- In ICT, just nine youth-led and youth focused organizations are working, that represents 14.5 percent of the total YOs identified in ICT.
- While more than fifty-six percent YOs identified are YC& YS. This again shows the dominance of adults in youth organizations and that YOs are not youth focused.
- In ICT, number of YOs is very low i.e. 62 and the representation of youth within organization systems is found to be insignificant.

Mapping of YO's identified in ICT is as:

ICT	Youth Focused Organizations (YF)		Youth as a Component Organizations(YC)
	Youth-led	Youth-serving	Youth-led	Youth-serving
	9	14	4	35

Recommendations

- Sensitization of international and national donors on the issue of youth bulge to invest on youth
- Organizing an annual gathering for all youth donors in Pakistan. During this event, donors should present their annual plans and innovative visions regarding working with youth. The outcomes of this annual event should be documented and publicized as an important reference for all organizations working with youth in Pakistan.
- A debate among society must be generated about the importance of youth organization
- There is need to initiate a dialogue among civil society organizations to include youth as a component in their programmes and projects
- Identification and capacity building of potential groups so they can be transformed into YO's
- Advocacy for the formation of YF & YL organizations
- Inclusion of marginalized, out of school and youth of rural areas in programmes of YO's

1.4.2 Representation of Youth within Youth Organization Systems

According to survey on youth¹¹, youth is considered inexperienced and nonprofessional by the society. On most of the occasion, our society is hesitant to give youth leadership roles. According to our enumerators, in ICT, working of YOs is considered more professional and most of the hiring is of experienced personnel. Furthermore, heads of these YOs are adults. More or less same cases are observed in YOs in Punjab.

1.4.2.1 Punjab

Findings:

- Youth in BODs (Punjab) are less than 35 percent. In district Pakpattan, youth represents less than 10 percent (lowest value) in BODs. Where as in Sahiwal youth represents nearly 6 percent (highest value) in BODs
- In employees (Punjab) of YOs, the trend is better where youth represents more than 51 percent

The following table maps out the representation of youth in each district. The table compares percentage youth to percentage adult in BODs, executive members and employees

1.4.2.2 Islamabad Capital Territory

Findings:

In ICT, we further find a very low representation of youth in Board of directors, executive members and employees.

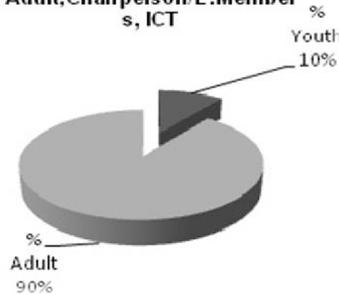

- Youth participation in ICT is even lower as compared to Punjab
- In ICT adult represents nearly 58 percent of the employees
- Percentage sharply falls in case of BODs (ICT), where youth represents less than 20 percent of BODs members
- Youth representing as executive members or chairperson (ICT) is just 11 percent
- Most of the organizations working in ICT are international organizations having youth as a component.
- International YOs or national YOs working in ICT mostly seek experienced person to hire as employees.

Recommendations

- YOs must provide regular internships to youth. It will mutually benefit both the organization and the youth.
- Advocacy must be done for the introduction of analytical, communication and self-management skills into national curriculum. So the element of skill gap among youth can be bridged.
- To initiate a dialogue among YOs to give youth proper representation in BODs and employees. It would be beneficial for YOs to start integrating youth in their management, either as employees or as BODs.
- Youth-adult partnerships must be developed in YOs. Youth should take part in planning, and managing the different activities undertaken by YOs. This process would assist in exchanging experiences between youth and adults on one side, and would allow the integration of new, innovative and creative ideas of youth that may lead to better services of YOs on the other side. Youth would acquire skills that not only will allow them to start youth driven activities but also raise their employability.

- Encouraging the experience exchange among youth-Led and Youth-serving organizations.

1.4.3 Gender Comparison within Youth Organization Systems

According to UNDP report, Pakistan's Gender Inequality Index is 0.721 ranked 105¹² among 169 listed countries. This shows loss in achieving three dimensions of human development--reproductive health, empowerment and labour market due to inequality between genders.

Female youth represents thirty percent¹³ of the total projected population of Pakistan. Nevertheless, this larger portion of the population is not given its due share. Pakistani women are always underrepresented within organizational systems, especially at leadership positions. Famous activists Farida Shaheed and Khawer Mumtaz, in their status report (Shaheed and Mumtaz 1990) wrote that 'women's potential productivity is underutilized and their actual labour over utilized.'

More or less similar trends are observed within organizational systems of YOs in Punjab & ICT, where women are greatly underrepresented in Board of Directors and in volunteers.

1.4.3.1 Punjab

Findings:

¹² <http://hdrstats.undp.org/en/indicators/68606.html>

¹³ <http://www.census.gov/ipc/www/idb/groups.php> (Accessed on June 26, 2011)

- Overall representation of women in BODs (Punjab) of YO's is less than 31 percent. The widest gender gap is found in Gujrat where men represent 96 percent of the BOD's while women represent less than 4 percent of the board members. Whereas the least representation of women among volunteers is found in Mandi Bahaudin i.e. nearly 6 percent.
- Likewise, the overall representation (Punjab) of women in volunteers of YO's is less than 40 percent. Least gender gap among BODs is found in Bahawalnagar district, where women represent 57 percent of the members, while among volunteers gender gap is minimum in Bhakkar and Bahawalpur districts where women representation is 58 percent.

Below table compares women and men representation across the districts of Punjab. That would help to judge district wise gender gap.

Following two graphs represent district wise comparison of men to women (percentage) in BODs and volunteers respectively. Districts comparison has been given alphabetically.

District wise Comparison % Men to % Women, BODs

District wise Comparison % Men to % Women, Volunteers

1.4.3.2 Islamabad Capital Territory

Findings:

In ICT women represents less than thirty-one percent in BODs, which is nearly same as that of Punjab's. However, the representation of women among volunteers is a bit encouraging i.e. forty-six percent.

Recommendations

- Every YO must have a gender policy where equal representation of women in BODs, employees and volunteers should be ensured.
- YOs should take practical measures to encourage women to work. This may include more benefits like pick and drop facilities, day care centers etc. This may increase cost but it would earn more commitment for the organization.
- YOs must sensitize community to encourage women to participate in social work.

1.4.4 Programmes of Youth Organizations

YOs have a range of programmes with different names. The research team identified seven areas where these programmes could be categorized these included education; health; awareness; capacity building; research and studies; small and micro credit and environment. Any programme of YOs not coming under these categories is put in the category of 'others'.

1.4.4.1 Punjab

Findings:

- No documented source on the youth issues of Punjab is found
- After categorization, the education programmes (Punjab) are found to be most prevalent. 302 out of 372 organizations have education programmes.
- Small micro-credit programmes (Punjab) are found to be the least focused area, as only 32 organizations have small micro credit programmes.
- Research studies have been identified only in fifty-seven organizations.
- While in 'other' areas category the prevailing programme identified is sport. Sport is found to be a programme area in fourteen districts; Vocational training programmes in thirteen districts; Flood relief related programmes in six districts; Small business training in five districts; Cultural, youth development and anti narcotics in five districts and; in three districts organizations are working for marriages of youth.

Following table helps to identify programmes district. The last row of the table gives the aggregate of each programme of Punjab.

1.4.4.2 Islamabad Capital Territory

Findings:

- No documented source on youth issues of ICT found.
- In ICT, fifty-six YOs have capacity-building programmes, while least programmes are on environment.

The details are in the following table:

Education Programs	Health Programs	Awareness Programs	Capacity Building Programmes	Research and Studies	Small and micro-credit Programs	Environmental Programmes	(Any other please specify)
48	24	62	56	29	5	3	Disaster management , Scholarship program

Recommendations

- A research on youth issues must be conducted, so that programmes on youth can be designed accordingly.
- YOs should introduce small micro-credit programme in their programme areas, as it would facilitate entrepreneurship among youth.
- Activities of YOs must be based upon research rather on assumptions. For conducting research, small YOs may take help of YOs that are already conducting research or from international YOs; this will not only increase the capacity of organizations but also enhance the networking.
- Millennium Development Goals must be integrated within programmes of all YOs.
- All YOs approach must be environment friendly. For example, least use of paper pages for printing, more use of handmade papers and spreading awareness of environment practices by emails and social media etc.

1.4.5 Capacities of Youth Organizations & their Networking

1.4.5.1 Punjab & Islamabad Capital Territory

Findings:

It is found that YOs have least capacities and very limited networking. The main findings in this regard are as:

- During the study, it is found that YOs have limited resources and minimal technical skills.
- Most of YOs cannot develop proposal. Therefore, they have to hire consultant for making proposals.
- English is a communication barrier for most of the YOs, most of the YO officers have command over their fieldwork but are less proficient in English language.
- Forty percent of the YOs do not have email ids.

- Less than thirty percent YOs have their websites.
- Less than thirty percent YOs have coordination either with any other YOs or with civil society organizations.

Recommendations:

- A broad based programme must be initiated for the capacity building of YOs. It may include workshops on proposal writing; project management; logical framework analysis; monitoring and evaluation; costing and budgeting; internet and email use etc.
- Donors must have less strict criteria's for small YOs. Relaxation may be given in English language proficiency.
- Donors must also focus on small NGOs working in rural areas. Donors may introduce criteria for well-established YOs to collaborate small YOs in their projects.
- Strong networking among youth organizations must be developed. This can best be done by making platforms for YOs. Platforms can be made at district level, on provincial level and on national level. In this way, a well-focused strategy and approach for youth development may be developed if all YOs can be linked through a single national platform.

1.4.6 Informal Youth Groups

Pakistan is culturally a very rich country, where we can find people involved in a variety of cultural activities. Activities may range from local games like 'gulli danda', 'cock fight', 'koklachapati' to folk dances 'luddi' and 'Bhangra' to organizing of folk performances etc.

IYGs play a very important role in engaging youth through cultural inbuilt youth participation models. It is found that members of these IYGs are volunteers and identified as highly motivated segment of the society. They engage youth more effectively as their working methodology is tailored according to mindset of the area.

Informal Youth Groups (IYGs) were very difficult to identify as they lack official identity and their activities are not much frequent. A total number of 112 forms were received out of which 64 IYGs met the pre-defined criteria, whereas forty-eight forms were rejected.

The study shows that most of IYGs are self-relying and generate resources from their own sources. All of the members of IYG's are volunteers and spare valuable time and energies for community and youth engagement.

Below table provides the district wise details of the current activities that IYG of that district implement;

District	Current Activities that group implement
Bahawalnagar	Punjabi writing , poetry competitions , sport tournaments, campaign for education

Khushab	Yes
Lahore	Yes
Lodhran	Yes
Mandi Bahaudin	To create honest and youth oriented structure
Mianwali	Yes
Multan	To form a youth organization , art institute and youth organization
Muzaffargarh	Yes

District	Does the group target/dream of having a formal structure in the future
Narowal	No
Raheem Yar Khan	To increase the structure on the district level ,to create strong structure and bring vital change in society
Rajan Pur	Cultural organization for youth, to convey the message of peace, to promote craft in the society and to have a formal structure as an organization.
Rawalpindi	Yes
Sahiwal	To increase membership, register as a NGO
Sargodha	To be student oriented
Sheikhupura	Yes
Vehari	To register as NGO
Islamabad	To be a youth organization

As stated in the introduction, youth have dreams and they work for them to transform into reality. The above list shows a desire among youth groups to be future YOs. Most of the groups' dream of being structured NGOs to provide the group with a formal identity. All members of successful groups are volunteers. They give time, effort and even money to support the implementation of the activities designed and initiated by the group. Very few groups receive small funds from local NGOs. Within the youth groups lies a big potential for future youth organizations. The extraordinary commitment of the youth attached to these groups shows that youth in Pakistan are willing to get involved in society development.

None of the youth groups has access to funds from any organization or bi- or multilateral development institutions or UN programmes.

Recommendations

- Increasing the capacity of the informal youth groups, so in future IYGs can be registered and work as YOs.
- Linking groups with YOs that are concerned with the same issue to each other.
- Raising awareness on the existence, activities and needs of the informal youth groups through different ways, such as the social media.

1.5 Main Findings

- 1) Youth organization is relatively a new term and most the organizations had never heard such term, until very present
- 2) International funding specifically on the issues of youth is nearly insignificant.
- 3) Punjab represents 56 percent (81,330,531) of the total projected population of Pakistan. Population of youth in Punjab is 24561820 while there are just 372 identified YOs. It means that every organization has to cover sixty six thousand youth. Now the total numbers of volunteers that the YOs have in Punjab are 197633.

- 4) If we compare the number of identified YOs in Punjab against TSWDS, YOs are just 5.25% of the total registered organizations registered with Social Welfare Department. This shows that the trend of either youth focused and Organizations having youth as a component is rare.
- 5) Volunteers of most of YOs belong to educational institutions. Marginalized and out of school youth is not the focus of most YOs.
- 6) Total number of Youth Focused YOs is 137 very low against Organizations having youth as a component that are 259. (Identified in Punjab)
- 7) Highest number of YF & YL (10) is identified in Lahore and there are fourteen districts in Punjab where no YF & YL is found.
- 8) There are four districts in Punjab where the maximum six YF & YS organizations are found while no YF and YS is found in sixteen districts.
- 9) Distribution of YOs in rural areas is far less as compared to urban areas.
- 10) In ICT, just nine youth-led and youth focused organizations are working, that represents 14.5 percent of the total YOs identified in ICT.
- 11) While more than fifty-six percent YOs identified are YC& YS. This again shows the dominance of adults in youth organizations and that YOs are not youth focused.
- 12) In ICT, number of YOs is very low i.e. 62 and the representation of youth within organization systems is found to be insignificant. Youth in BODs (Punjab) are less than 35 percent. In district Pakpattan, youth represents less than 10 percent (lowest value) in BODs. Where as in Sahiwal youth represents nearly 6 percent (highest value) in BODs
- 13) In employees (Punjab) of YOs, the trend is better where youth represents more than 51 percent
- 14) Youth participation in ICT is even lower as compared to Punjab, in ICT adult represents nearly 58 percent of the employees. Percentage sharply falls in case of BODs (ICT), where youth represents less than 20 percent of BODs members. Youth representing as executive members or chairperson (ICT) is just 11 percent

- 15) Most of the organizations working in ICT are international organizations having youth as a component.
- 16) International YOs or national YOs working in ICT mostly seek experienced person to hire as employees.
- 17) Overall representation of women in BODs (Punjab) of YOs is less than 31 percent. The widest gender gap is found in Gujrat where men represent 96 percent of the BOD's while women represent less than 4 percent of the board members. Whereas the least representation of women among volunteers is found in Mandi Bahaudin i.e. nearly 6 percent.
- 18) Likewise, the overall representation (Punjab) of women in volunteers of YOs is less than 40 percent. Least gender gap among BODs is found in Bahawalnagar district, where women represent 57 percent of the members, while among volunteers gender gap is minimum in Bhakkar and Bahawalpur districts where women representation is 58 percent.
- 19) In ICT women represents less than thirty-one percent in BODs, which is nearly same as that of Punjab's. However, the representation of women among volunteers is a bit encouraging i.e. forty-six percent.
- 20) No documented source on the youth issues of Punjab is found
- 21) After categorization, the education programmes (Punjab) are found to be most prevalent. 302 out of 372 organizations have education programmes.
- 22) Small micro-credit programmes (Punjab) are found to be the least focused area, as only 32 organizations have small micro credit programmes.
- 23) Research studies have been identified only in fifty-seven organizations.
- 24) While in 'other' areas category (Punjab) the prevailing programme identified is sport. Sport is found to be a programme area in fourteen districts; Vocational training programmes in thirteen districts; Flood relief related programmes in six districts; Small business training in five districts; Cultural, youth development and anti narcotics in five districts and; youth marriages in three districts.

- 25) No documented source on youth issues of ICT found.
- 26) In ICT 56 YOs, have capacity-building programmes, while least programmes are on environment.
- 27) During the study, it is found that YOs have limited resources and minimal technical skills.
- 28) Most of YOs cannot develop proposal. Therefore, they have to hire consultant for making proposals.
- 29) English is a communication barrier for most of the YOs, most of the YO officers have command over their fieldwork but are less proficient in English.
- 30) Forty percent of the YOs do not have email ids.
- 31) Less than thirty percent YOs have their websites.
- 32) Less than thirty percent YOs have coordination either with other YOs or with civil society organizations.
- 33) IYGs are self-relying and generate resources from their own sources. All of the members of IYG's are volunteers and spare valuable time and energies for community and youth engagement. But they do not get funds from donors because of lack of proper identity
- 34) IYGs need capacity building to transform them into proper YOs.

1.6 Main Recommendations

- 1) Sensitization of international and national donors on the issue of youth bulge
- 2) Organizing an annual gathering for all youth donors in Pakistan. During this event, donors should present their annual plans and innovative visions regarding working with youth. The outcomes of this annual event should be documented and publicized as an important reference for all organizations working with youth in Pakistan

- 3) A debate among society must be generated about the importance of youth organization
- 4) There is need to initiate a dialogue among civil society organizations to include youth as a component in their programmes and projects
- 5) Identification and capacity building of potential groups so they can be transformed into YOs
- 6) Advocacy for the formation of YF & YL organizations
- 7) Inclusion of marginalized, out of school and youth of rural areas in programmes of YOs
- 8) YOs must provide regular internships to youth. It will mutually benefit both the organization and the youth
- 9) Advocacy must be done for the introduction of analytical, communication and self-management skills into national curriculum. So the element of skill gap among youth can be bridged
- 10) To initiate a dialogue among YOs to give youth proper representation in BODs and employees. It would be beneficial for YOs to start integrating youth in their management either as employees or as BODs.
- 11) Youth-adult partnerships must be developed in YOs. Youth should take part in planning, and managing the different activities undertaken by YOs. This process would assist in exchanging experiences between youth and adults on one side, and would allow the integration of new, innovative and creative ideas of youth that may lead to better services of YOs on the other side. Youth would acquire skills that not only will allow them to start youth driven activities but also raise their employability.
- 12) Encouraging the experience exchange among youth-Led and Youth-serving organizations.
- 13) Every YO must have a gender policy where equal representation of women in BODs, employees and volunteers should be ensured.

- 14) YOs should take practical measures to encourage women to work. This may include more benefits like pick and drop facilities, day care centers etc. This may increase cost but it would earn more commitment for the organization.
- 15) YOs must sensitize community to encourage women to participate in social work.
- 16) A research on youth issues must be conducted so that programmes on youth can be designed accordingly.
- 17) YOs should introduce small micro-credit programme in their programme areas, as it would facilitate entrepreneurship among youth.
- 18) Activities of YOs must be based upon research rather on assumptions. For conducting research, small YOs may take help of YOs that are already conducting research or from international YOs; this will not only increase the capacity of organizations but also enhance the networking.
- 19) Millennium Development Goals must be integrated within programmes of all YOs.
- 20) All YOs approach must be environment friendly. For example, least use of paper pages for printing, more use of handmade papers and spreading awareness of environment practices by emails and social media etc.
- 21) A broad based programme must be initiated for the capacity building of YOs. It may include workshops on proposal writing; project management; logical framework analysis; monitoring and evaluation; costing and budgeting; internet and email use etc.
- 22) Donors must have less strict criteria's for small YOs. Relaxation may be given in English proficiency.
- 23) Donors must also focus on small NGOs working in rural areas. Donors may introduce criteria for well-established YOs to collaborate small YOs in their projects.
- 24) Strong networking among youth organizations must be developed. This can best be done by making platforms for YOs. Platforms can be made at district level, on provincial level and on national level. In this way, a well-focused strategy and approach for youth development may be developed if all YOs are linked through a single national platform.

- 25) Increasing the capacity of the informal youth groups, so in future IYGs can be registered and work as YOs.
- 26) Linking groups with YOs that are concerned with the same issue to each other.
- 27) Raising awareness on the existence, activities and needs of the informal youth groups through different ways, such as the social media.

Section II - Youth Directory

Key to use the Directory

The directory contains contact information on youth organizations, informal youth groups of Punjab and ICT. In addition, it also contains contact information on student wings of political parties.

Following are some tips that would facilitate you to go through the directory:

- ✓ Districts are listed in alphabetical order i.e. Attock to Vehari. After districts of Punjab, ICT YOs and IYGs are placed.
- ✓ All YOs and IYGS are cataloged in alphabetical order.
- ✓ First, Youth Focused Organizations are placed containing A) youth-led and then B) youth-serving.
- ✓ Second, Organizations having Youth as a Component are placed containing A) youth-led and then B) youth-serving organizations.
- ✓ Please consult 1.3.1.1 of section 1 for definitions of YOs and IYGs.
- ✓ For list of acronyms, please consult page 7 of the document.

Pakistan is one of the world's "very young" countries, in which two thirds of the population is under 30 years of age. Such a profile immediately raises crucial questions of national capacity and the appropriateness of domestic policies. With this initial mapping study of youth organizations and informal youth groups in Pakistan, its creators and scholars eased the way for Pakistani policy makers, civil-society groups, academicians, and journalists to propose creative responses on a critical question. In describing and analyzing more than 400 youth organizations and informal youth groups—and importantly their programs and projects—the mapping study also provides a model for other similarly young nations to embrace. One prominent finding that has an important bearing on the political stability, economic prosperity, and degree of social justice and cohesion in Pakistan is the underrepresentation of young women in organizations and leadership; this calls for further exploration. The study's path-finding disclosures can greatly help the development of pro-active national policies.

Bargad team has devoted enormous efforts to develop this directory. It is a unique work done in the history of Pakistan. The first ever Youth Directory 2011 is developed based on scientific research and analysis that covers minute details ranging from geo-coverage of youth organizations to the information related youth serving programs and even gender representation in these organizations. In my opinion this is a milestone achievement in the field of youth work in Pakistan that opens up avenues for youth programming, capacity building and further research opportunities.

Sadia Atta Mehmood
Youth Expert

The report was done by a largely volunteer team within Pakistan, and represents the first comprehensive look at youth programs in two areas: Punjab and the Islamabad Capital Territory. It is the first of a five-stage mapping exercise that includes all of Pakistan. Bargad's research team, led by Dr. Khan, reviewed a total of 852 survey forms in order to distill the final data set. The findings reveal the keen level of interest at this time in youth programming, especially educational programming, and the dedication and determination of many committed volunteers in Pakistan. Some volunteers use their own resources to support the programs where they work. However, the report also reveals the need for better coordination between the programs, more youth serving on the Boards of Directors of those programs, more women in leadership roles and on the Boards of Directors of the programs, more emphasis on programs in rural areas, more work to be done with marginalized and out-of-school youth, and the need for NGOs to work more closely with existing and established youth programs. This report represents the first step in a hopefully thorough examination of youth programming in Pakistan.
